Dayhill Group Provides Funds Administration for Largest Solar Energy Site of its Kind in Western Hemisphere

On June 13, 2011, the McGraw-Hill Companies (“McGraw-Hill”) announced plans to build the largest privately-owned, net-metered solar project (the “Solar Project”) in the Western Hemisphere. Located on their campus in East Windsor, New Jersey, the 14.1 megawatt solar system will provide power to McGraw-Hill through a Power Purchase Agreement. Once completed, the Solar Project will significantly offset the need for other energy sources to run McGraw-Hill’s corporate offices and data center.

Through their sophisticated funds administration service, Dayhill Group will manage all project finances during the pre-construction, construction and commissioning phases of this $60 million project that is expected to be completed in the spring of 2012.

“Once installed, solar technology works. One of the greatest risks to an investor occurs during the pre-construction and construction phases. It is critical that a system is built on time and on budget. By monitoring and controlling funds, funds administration substantially mitigates this risk. This decreases the overall project risk, which in turn should allow capital to be deployed more effectively,” said Kevin Deasy, CEO and Principal of Dayhill Group. Mr. Deasy went on to say that “Dayhill is proud to be involved in this ground-breaking venture. We are pleased that the participants recognized the value our services bring to the project.”

Located in Berwyn, Pennsylvania, Dayhill Group’s funds administration service is an extremely effective system of internal controls that helps to ensure that funds are deployed in accordance with contractual obligations. This service is one of our three primary business segments, the other two being construction risk management and project financing structuring and procurement.
